INTRODUCTION

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

It is essential that communities have a say in decisions that shape their future, and that they help determine the way Council delivers its services to the community. Effective community engagement is a process where communities can access relevant information and provide feedback to Council through methods they are comfortable with.

We understand that when our community is informed and has an opportunity to have a say on decisions that may affect them we achieve better outcomes for the community as a whole. This Communications and Community Engagement Strategy (CCES) forms part of an integrated framework guiding our communication and engagement activities.

STRATEGIC CONTEXT

The values expressed in this Strategy are consistent with those of our community as reflected in the Edward River Community Strategic Plan and Council's Community Participation Plan.

For Council staff and elected officials, the Strategy acts as a guide for engagement and the delivery of timely and transparent communications. And for our community, it outlines the standard by which we will be held accountable.

This Strategy is informed by and meets the requirements of the following legislation:

- Local Government Act 1993
- Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act 1998
- NSW Information Commissioner's Charter for Public Participation 2018
- Crown Land Management Act 2016
- Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979
- Disability Inclusion Act 2014
- Government Information (Public Access) Act 2009

WHY IS COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT IMPORTANT?

Edward River Council recognises the importance of excellent communication and engagement with its most important stakeholder: community. For decisions to best meet community needs, it is essential that all community members know what is happening and understand how they may be affected. It is also vital for community members to have the opportunity to provide feedback for consideration in the decision-making process.

Council is committed to positive and effective communication and engagement with its community stakeholders. As part of this commitment, this strategy sets out the key principles that guide how we share information and seek and respond to feedback.

We're listening. Following a broad consultation with the community, councillors, and staff we've heard that Council's communication and engagement approach is not as effective as it could be.

We hear you and we're acting. The approach outlined in this Strategy reflects this feedback and is a demonstration of Council's commitment to continuous improvement.

We are striving to find better ways to keep everyone well-informed. We are striving to have better conversations with our community. We are striving to build strong relationships.

It is our goal to foster mutual trust and respect with all community members, so that we can achieve better community outcomes.

COMMUNITY PARTICIPATION PLAN

Community Participation Plans (CPP) are a requirement under the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979.

Endorsed in November 2019, the Edward River Council Community Participation Plan makes community participation in land-use planning matters easier and clearer.

The CPP identifies how and when Council will inform, engage and consult with the community on a variety of land-use planning functions.

The CPP applies only to the Strategic Land-Use Planning and Development Assessment functions of Council and excludes State Significant Development which is managed by the Department of Planning, Industry and Environment.

For ease of reference, the Edward River Council Community Participation Plan is included as an Appendix to this Strategy.

DEFINITIONS

Communications is how we connect with our stakeholders. It is sharing the right message at the right time to inform our community.

Source: NSW Government, All-Of-Government Communications Framework

Community engagement is a planned process with the specific purpose of working across organisations, stakeholders and communities to shape the decisions or actions of the members of the community, stakeholders or organisation in relation to a problem, opportunity or outcome.

“The most important thing council can do is talk to the locals – front-on and straight-up. The community also needs to help council out. We all have a role to play.”

OUR COMMUNITY

To ensure we plan our communications and engagement activities appropriately, it's important to understand what our local Edward River community looks like.

bring this vision to life, we know the composition of our community is going to change over time.

Below is a snapshot of our community in 2021, according to the Census of Population and Housing (Australian Bureau of Statistics). It reminds us to consider and use a variety of methods to ensure we engage effectively with all of our community.

TOWNS AND VILLAGES

The Edward River Local Government Area (LGA) is located in the Riverina Murray Region of south-western New South Wales near the border with Victoria.

Edward River LGA covers an area of nearly 9,000 square kilometres and is home to approximately 9,000 permanent residents. A challenge for Council's communications and engagement is to ensure we provide opportunities for all of our residents, no matter where they are across the LGA, to be engaged and receive information in a fair and equitable way.

The main population centres are the town of Deniliquin and the six rural villages of Blighty, Booororban, Conargo, Mayrung, Pretty Pine and Wanganella.

OUR STAKEHOLDERS

It is vital that we identify, understand and engage with stakeholders that are affected by, or have an interest in decisions made by Council. Council communicates and engages with many individuals, groups and organisations to ensure we hear a range of views and consider these in the decision-making process.

Our stakeholders include:

PRINCIPLES OF COMMUNICATION AND ENGAGEMENT

In all that it does, Council’s work is governed by the four social justice principles of equity, access, participation and rights. In this Strategy, the social justice principles are supported by other principles that have been developed through community input. When we asked you what was important about communication and engagement you told us it should:

Be accessible
Make channels and information easy to use and understand.

Be timely
Provide information and seek feedback with ample time to act.

Be targeted
Ensure all relevant community stakeholders are consulted.

Be acted upon
Community feedback should genuinely inform outcomes.

SOCIAL JUSTICE PRINCIPLES

Our approach reflects the principles that establish supportive environments for everyone – addressing barriers to communication and engagement that may exist.

OUR STRATEGY

HOW WE ENGAGED WITH YOU TO DEVELOP THIS STRATEGY

Our approach was to hear from our community about how we deliver communication and engagement – what currently works well, where there are opportunities for improvement, and how you prefer to be engaged by and receive communications from Council.

To ensure we heard from a broad cross-section of our community, we conducted pop-up activities at the Peppin Heritage Centre and Deni Wanderers soccer match day. We attended Blighty netball and AFL training evening sessions and distributed a fact sheet inviting feedback. We invited stakeholders who regularly interact with Council to a stakeholder workshop and spoke to others on the phone. We also listened to our councillors and staff.

In addition, we conducted an online survey which was promoted on Facebook, distributed paper surveys at engagement activities, conducted telephone interviews and targeted interviews with First Nations representatives and other key community groups, and posted on Facebook to let people know about our engagement activities and how to get involved. We created an information sheet, created an engagement page on the Edward River Council website, and set up display boards in public areas.

We heard from many community stakeholders, and their ideas, priorities, concerns and feedback has been considered in the development of this Strategy.

WHAT WE HEARD

Communication Methods

- Approximately half of those we spoke to preferred direct communication (via customer service or a call to Council) and approximately half expressed a preference for digital communication, (via Council’s website and social media).
- The community acknowledged that comments on social media posts can be unhelpful on occasions.

Customer Service

- Positive feedback was received about the face-to-face customer service provided by Council
- People appreciate being able to talk to someone directly about their issues.

Responsiveness

- In some instance people felt that if they provide feedback it may not be listened to by Council.

Timing

- The community stressed the importance of receiving information with enough time to consider it, participate and give feedback before a decision is made.

Willingness to Participate

- Community members expressed a willingness to be involved in communication and engagement activities if the method/activity aligns with their availability and lifestyle.

OUR COMMUNICATIONS AND ENGAGEMENT VISION

We actively communicate and engage in a way that shares our stories, listens to our community, informs our future, and improves the wellbeing of the people who live in the Edward River Council region.

THIS STRATEGY

As the closest level of government connected to the community, we have a unique opportunity to communicate and engage with our local residents and other community members. Council delivers over 40 Council services, with approximately 120 staff across the organisation. We're also the link between our community and other levels of government, advocating for your priorities.

Edward River Council has prepared this Strategy to guide all of its communication and engagement activities with the ultimate aim of enhancing community outcomes.

This Strategy outlines Council's commitment to inform and involve all community members. It details the main elements of our approach to share information, seek feedback, and work together.

The successful implementation of this Strategy will help Council to effectively communicate and proactively act on feedback it receives. In doing so, it underpins our ability to deliver quality services and infrastructure to the community we serve. The Strategy will support a consistent approach to all our communications and engagement activities.

DECISION MAKING

The role of Council is to make decisions that have benefits for the community as a whole.

Our community provides meaningful input to Council's decision-making in many forms, including surveys, formal submissions, advisory group recommendations, complaints and compliments, customer enquiries, and through interactions with staff and elected officials. This feedback is considered when Council makes decisions.

We understand that there are often a range of views on any particular issue. Council will always listen to all views, but cannot act on every desire expressed by the community. We must act to benefit the whole community within available resources. We acknowledge that not every decision made by Council will please everyone.

There will also be occasions where Council must make a decision with limited community input. For example, this may be because the decision is largely determined by legislation, or because an urgent decision must be made to address an immediate risk.

OUR COMMITMENT

Edward River Council commits to regularly communicating with, seeking input from, and involving all relevant community stakeholders in decisions that directly impact them.

We are committed to:

Enabling all community members to have a voice to Council

- Truly understanding community needs and priorities
- Making information easy to access and understand
- Giving meaningful consideration to all feedback
- Continually improving.

We will do this by:

- Being proactive and responsive
- Promoting equitable participation
- Conducting stakeholder research
- Targeting relevant stakeholders
- Using community-preferred communications channels and engagement tools
- Explaining our decisions
- Honestly appraising our own performance.

ENGAGEMENT IN PRACTICE

WHEN WE WILL ENGAGE

Community engagement takes place in many ways - from a quick online survey to a series of community workshops.

Council commits to identifying circumstances where engagement should be undertaken, and also acknowledges that sometimes engagement will be initiated by the community. Examples of when we will engage include when there is a change proposed to our services, a need to update or develop Council plans and policies, or in planning for new community infrastructure.

Council may seek input and feedback from the community at various stages in a project. The specific timing will depend upon the context, relevant legislation, and best practice. In many cases legislation sets out minimum requirements for receiving public feedback.

HOW WE WILL ENGAGE

Council understands that the size of our Local Government Area (LGA) can be a barrier to engagement.

When we plan engagement, we will tailor activities to ensure everyone can access information and provide feedback in a variety of ways. Council commits to creating opportunities for face-to-face and online engagement where possible and appropriate.

We know digital engagement isn't always suitable for everyone, especially in areas that can't access high-speed internet and for some people in our community. This will be front of mind when we plan engagement, and we understand that in some cases more traditional methods of communication, such as a letter or a notice in the newspaper, work best.

Council will provide our community with sufficient time to consider the information provided and have their say. We will also allow sufficient time to consider all feedback we receive in the final decision-making process.

We are keen to use creativity and innovation wherever possible to more effectively communicate and engage with communities. We also commit to developing communications and engagement tools that provide for standardised and consistent processes.

WHAT TO EXPECT

The community can expect Council to follow these steps when it delivers engagement activities:

Describe what is being proposed in clear, easy-to-understand terms

We will make what is being proposed clear, and describe potential benefits or impacts of the plan, policy, project or initiative. We will also clearly articulate key dates and how the community can receive information and provide feedback.

Identify relevant stakeholders

Once the project is defined, the next step for Council staff is to identify who in the community may be interested in or affected by the project. In some cases this may be a specific group of stakeholders, while in other instances the whole Edward River community may have a stake in the project.

Choose the most appropriate communication methods

Once the project is defined and stakeholders identified, Council will carefully consider the best and most appropriate ways to reach the community and identified stakeholders. Sharing information may be as simple as an addressed letter, a social media post or website update. Methods for receiving feedback are detailed in the following section and may include community workshops, focus groups, surveys, online feedback or a range of other engagement activities. For complex projects, or where it is unclear what the best method of communication may be, we will ask identified stakeholders how they would like to be engaged.

Provide accurate, easy-to-understand and consistent information

As part of the engagement process, Council will provide the community with accurate information that is easy to understand. Messaging from staff and elected officials will be clear and consistent. This may include fact sheets, answers to frequently asked questions, discussion papers or short videos.

Seek and listen to feedback

Council commits to actively listening to feedback, understanding perspectives across the community and recording the feedback received.

Consider our response

Council will collate, analyse and identify how engagement outcomes will be used to make decisions.

Closing the loop

We commit to, wherever practical, letting the community know what we have heard and how that feedback has informed decisions.

METHODS OF COMMUNICATION AND ENGAGEMENT

Council tailors the way it shares information and invites participation to best match the initiative and the needs of community.

Engagement on land-use planning functions is specifically outlined in the Edward River Council Community Participation Plan and is included in an Appendix to this Strategy.

For other services, functions and infrastructure delivered by Council we will regularly use the following communication methods detailed in the table below. The table also identifies where these methods align with the IAP2 Spectrum of Public Participation.

It should be noted that the IAP2 Spectrum includes “Empower” as a level of community engagement. However, under the Local Government Act 1993, the only decision-making power that is placed in the hands of the public is the ability to elect Council Members every four years.

At Council, our approach aligned to the IAP2 Spectrum is as follows:

LEVEL	GOAL	APPROACH	METHODS
Inform	One way communication providing balanced and objective information to help you understand what is going to happen or has happened	We will share information about a decision or direction.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Website information Advertisements in local media Letters to residents, ratepayers and other stakeholders Brochures/fact sheets Information displays Flyer in rates notices Banners in key locations Social media posts
Consult	Two-way communications to obtain public feedback about ideas on rationale, alternatives and proposals to inform decision making.	We will explore options, gain feedback and an understanding of your preferences.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Online feedback form and emails Meetings by invitation Reference groups Surveys/market research Public feedback/ Submissions Public & online forums Drop-in sessions Face-to-face interviews with stakeholders Village discussions
Involve	Participatory process designed to help identify issues and views to ensure that concerns and aspirations are understood and considered prior to decision making.	Your ideas and issues will shape the final decision or recommendations.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Council committees Facilitated workshops Focus groups
Collaborate	Working together to develop an understanding of all issues and interests to work out alternatives and identify preferred solutions.	Your recommendations will be included in the final decision.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Advisory or reference groups Committees & panels Focus groups

ENGAGING IN PERSON

Engagement or participation is not only about having your say, it is also about listening to others to understand their point of view. In-person engagement activities allow an opportunity for this two-way discussion. Some of the in-person opportunities we may use include:

- Community workshops and stakeholder meetings and information sessions, to enable the community to understand and be understood by others when sharing their views
- Public forums allow community members to address Councillors on items for consideration at a Council meeting
- Committees provide a meeting forum for community group representatives to raise issues relevant to the Committee's Terms of Reference
- Direct contact, either in person or over the phone, between Council officials and community members and groups on specific projects and plans

ENGAGING ONLINE

Online communication and engagement can allow people who may otherwise be excluded from in-person engagement activities to participate.

- Council's website provides information to the public on Council projects and services and includes online surveys and other feedback mechanisms from time to time
- Social media channels are an opportunity to keep the community up to date and provides community access opportunities to learn more about Council matters
- Council's dedicated email at haveyoursay@edwardriver.nsw.gov.au

MORE TRADITIONAL ENGAGEMENT

Our community is still interested in more traditional methods of engagement, which include engaging in person – outlined above – as well as:

- Direct mail or letterbox drops to residents and groups
- Pop-up stalls at frequently visited locations
- Onsite or physical displays and signage at events or key locations
- Advertisements and Community News in our local newspaper
- Advertisements, community announcements and interviews on radio or television

ENGAGING DURING EMERGENCIES

Over time our region has been affected by floods, fires, extreme weather and pandemic restrictions. When there is an emergency it is vital we look out for each other and share accurate and timely information to make sure everyone stays safe and know how to access support.

When there is an emergency, Council will work with local emergency services and the community to share information. In all cases, emergency services will be the lead authority to ensure accurate advice and consistent messages are provided to our community.

HOW WE RESPOND TO FEEDBACK

We will ensure the community feedback we receive is collated and provided for consideration during decision-making processes.

When a draft plan, policy or program proposal is placed on public exhibition or is the subject of a community engagement activity, the report to Council recommending a decision will include a summary of the feedback received, and may include:

- Engagement and communication methods used
- Participation rates and engagement data
- Information about submissions/feedback received, and Council's response to that feedback.

Individual submissions received may be provided as an attachment to a report to Council. Every effort will be made to de-identify personal information included in submissions that are published in a Council business paper.

EVALUATION AND MEASUREMENT

To measure and evaluate the effectiveness of our engagement, we will assess:

- Measurable participation levels in engagement activities.
- The methods used and if they were appropriate and relevant to the stakeholders.
- If the responses were relevant to the plan or project.

- Verbal and written feedback from the community on the effectiveness of the engagement activities used, and adequacy of the material and information to give informed feedback.
- Achievement of the engagement aims in the Community Engagement Strategy.
- How we reached a representative cross-section of affected stakeholder or the community generally.

These evaluation results will be used to continually improve our engagement methods and inform future engagement and communications activities.

This Strategy will be reviewed as part of the review of the Community Strategic Plan around the time of each local government election, or as required in the event of legislative or other significant changes that require a review of Council's engagement or communications approach.

Evaluation is outlined more fully in the Measuring Success chapter, below.

We want to hear from and talk with all community members.

We must encourage, empower and enable everyone to participate.

MEASURING SUCCESS

Successful engagement will mean our community feels listened to, and that we act on the feedback we receive.

Community engagement is not a one-size fits all concept. Many factors influence the approach Council will take. What works well in one situation may not work well in another.

Success also depends on the context. For some initiatives, success may be receiving a large number of submissions that highlight community concerns. While on others, success may be conducting rich, detailed conversations with a few community members.

In all situations, Council’s most important measure of success is that all community members related to the specific initiative feel like they know what is happening; that they have been listened to; that they have had opportunities to influence/inform outcomes. Where the community can’t influence outcomes Council will clearly explain why.

It is important that the results of community engagement are reported back to the community including any decisions made by Council. Reporting back and closing the feedback loop will demonstrate that community feedback is acted on.

Council will undertake an evaluation for each identified engagement process.

Some ways Council will evaluate the success of community engagement activities are:

- Rates of community participation in engagement activities (e.g. number of unique participants, number of surveys completed, number of attendees at an event)
- Appropriateness of engagement methods and techniques used (e.g. though participant evaluation surveys to confirm they got from the process their expected experience)
- Demographic analysis of participation in engagement activities to ensure we are hearing from a representative cross-section of the community
- Quality and range of feedback received through the consultation process

Council will report back on all its engagement activities and their associated outcomes through their website, social media pages and other publications. The six-monthly Delivery Program progress report and council’s Annual Report will also be utilised to highlight engagement activities and their outcomes.

KEEPING TRACK

As required by the Local Government Act 1993, Council will use the existing Integrated Planning and Reporting framework (IP&R) framework to plan, monitor and report on the implementation and effectiveness of this Strategy.

The next review of the Communication and Community Engagement Strategy will be undertaken in late 2024 and every four years thereafter to align with local government elections and the Integrated Planning and Reporting cycle.

Regular reviews will ensure that the Strategy aligns to contemporary practice and information available about the communication needs and engagement preferences of the community.
